

Happy Homecoming!

You all should be proud of your work even though we did not manage to finish the whole project in time for the game.

When you go to the bon fire tonight or the game tomorrow night, check out the progress that has been made. What can I say...your leaders must think your awesome...

Barb taped and painted the ticket windows with their 1st coat of green on Wednesday.

Roger taped and painted the lower roof rim with its first coat of bright gold and also cleaned all the JFK lettering on the upper room rim today.

I taped the front and filled in the tan, (this will need some work...the paint bled, making it look messy) I also gave the ticket windows their final coat of green paint today.

None of you guys were able to come today, but we sort of expected that given that it was homecoming week and that most of you do sports and other activities after school.

So, we will need to pow wow after homecoming and decide on a date/time for the final work party. If everyone shows up, I think YOU could knock out the remaining stuff in under 2 hours. If Sunday afternoons work well for all of YOU, I could do the 14th at 12:30...think about it.

GO HILLTOPPERS!

Joanna